TH7807 Aspects of Modern Mission

Through engagement with key commentators, this module explores the Scriptural concept of mission in the light of John's Gospel, considering notions of 'sending' exhibited in the Gospel as they relate to intra-Trinitarian relationships, to the disciples of Jesus and the church. It explores the Gospel's view of the world and of the human condition.

It introduces students to missiological texts with a view to critical examination of missiological trends. It further provides an opportunity for critical exploration of aspects of current mission practice in the modern world.

TH7809 Pastoral Response to Trauma

This module:

- provides teaching in working with a practical theological model suited to trauma response under the authority of Scripture.
- reflects upon aspects of biblical anthropology and neurophilosophy that are relevant to understanding trauma in people as a spiritual/religious phenomenon.
- explores doctrinal themes significant for a biblical approach to trauma in terms of a Christ-centred Theodrama. Such themes are: evil and suffering, providence, grace, compassion, justice and reconciliation.
- focuses upon the priority of divine love, and of the virtuous Christian community being above the necessity of technical skill, whilst not ignoring the place of the latter.
- includes an exercise in responding to constructed traumatic scenarios.

The module is taught by Roger Abbott who is also Research Associate in Natural Disasters at the Faraday Institute in Cambridge.

TH7811 Principles of Christian Leadership

The module considers the nature, governing paradigms and practical requirements of Christian leadership as expressed in the context of a worshipping congregation.

In summary, the module explores the nature of Christian leadership, in particular the theoretical principles of leadership, as well as their practical implications in terms of leadership skills.

Examples of topics which may be considered include the following:

- Leadership paradigms
- Biblical models and definitions
- Measures of success and failure
- Support structures in leadership
- Leadership and change
- Leadership goals
- Plurality of leadership
- Growing leaders

TH7812 Biblical Exegesis: English Text

In summary, the module consists of:

- An overview and sequential exploration of the English text of Paul's 1st letter to Timothy with detailed attention to selected passages.
- A study of exegetical method and an introduction to discourse analysis as an exegetical tool for the working pastor.
- An introduction to hermeneutical principles and methods with special reference to the homiletical task.

TH7813 Biblical Exegesis: Greek Text

This module aims to extend students' knowledge of Koine Greek and to develop skills in the exegesis of the Greek New Testament via the study of selected passages of varying genre and level of difficulty. The set texts, which may vary from year to year, will typically include selected passages from the Gospels of Mark and John, Acts, Galatians, Philippians, James and Revelation. In the course of the module, students will be introduced to a range of tools and methods for exegetical analysis and to a range of relevant scholarly literature.

TH7814 Biblical Exegesis: Hebrew Text

This module builds on knowledge of an introductory grammar of Biblical Hebrew by using the text of the book of Ruth.

In summary the module includes:

- A study of the Hebrew text of the book of Ruth.
- Analysis of grammar and syntax, as well aspects of discourse analysis.
- Exegetical and theological comment on the text.
- Examination of textual variants.

TH7816 Ministry in an Urban World

The module explores the nature of the urban world using historical, sociological and theological perspectives. It introduces theoretical insights into the nature of the urban process and its possible impact on the lives of individuals, on social life, and on the environment. Attention is given to contemporary trends in the developed world, with particular reference to suburbanization, and to cities in the Southern hemisphere, in relation to the migration to, and the growth of urban slums. The significance of these developments for Christian theology and ministry practice are discussed and students are expected to relate the module content to their understanding of mission today and to their local ministry practice.

TH7817 Popular Culture and the Christian Worldview

The module explores popular culture and a Christian response to it from a Reformed theological perspective. Examples of issues which may be considered include:

- Why engage popular culture in the contemporary West?
- Popular culture defined in terms of ëtextsí, namely anything that can be interpreted, such as song, movie, game, novel etc.
- An introduction to worldview, and how popular culture influences worldview in postmodern societies.
- Towards a theological understanding of the significance of popular culture.
- A critical appreciation of a range of Christian approaches to popular culture.
- How to interpret and critique popular cultural texts (song, movie, game, novel, etc.) by engaging the imaginative worlds they project (cf. Ricoeurís le monde du texte).
- Critiquing popular cultural worldviews apologetically.
- A Christian, imaginative response: creating an authentically Christian popular culture (and what do we mean by cultural "authenticity"?).

TH7821/TH7822 Research Methods

The modules provide instruction on the necessary skills for postgraduate study and academic research, in particular theological research.

In summary, the modules:

- Provide guidance on skills required for both researching and academic writing;
- Give practice in a variety of writing tasks typical of a scholarly researcher, such as book reviews, encyclopaedia articles and research proposals;
- Consider general philosophical approaches to research;
- Discuss quantitative and qualitative approaches to research;
- Consider some distinctives of theological research methodology;
- Consider ethical and epistemological issues surrounding research.

TH7818 Dissertation

The module entails the preparation of an extended piece of writing on a selected topic. The topic, which will relate to the programme's aims and learning outcomes, is identified in the context of study for the Research Methods modules. The dissertation is based upon largely independent research, albeit under the supervision of a tutor.

TH7827 The Spiritual Formation of the Leader

The module explores the interior, spiritual life of the Christian leader from the perspective of the Reformed tradition.

The module will consider topics such as:

- The glory of God as the Christian leader's guiding principle
- The place of the heart and affections in the life of the leader
- The use and abuse of power
- Leadership and justification by faith alone
- Leadership and suffering
- The biblical rationale for spiritual formation

TH7828 Contemporary Church Issues for Evangelicalism

The module begins by providing theological, historical and cultural contexts for a critical understanding of evangelicalism as an ecclesial and social movement. Using this contextual framework, the second part of the module explores and assesses evangelical responses to issues arising from being the church in contemporary society. A framework for issues is provided by the traditional attributes of the Church as one, holy, catholic and apostolic; and from the traditional Protestant marks of gospel ministry, church discipline, and works of mercy.

TH7829 Reflection on Ministry

The module provides the skills to enable reflection on current ministry practice in order to be appropriately self-critical, with a view to enhancing ministry. This is achieved by reflection on ministry practice and theory over an extended period, typically one year. The module also seeks to encourage integration of theory and practice of ministry.
